Protecting Women’s Rights: International Law & Advocacy
A Human Rights Training for Lawyers and Advocates

June 19, 2014  •  UC Hastings College of the Law  •  San Francisco

8:30 - 9:00:  Registration

9:00 - 9:30:  Welcome & Introduction to the Human Rights Framework
The international human rights framework provides lawyers and other advocates with a range of tools and opportunities for advancing women’s rights locally, nationally and internationally. This opening session will provide a brief introduction to the human rights framework and its relevance to women’s rights, and outline the topics that will be discussed in each of the following sessions.

The speakers will provide an overview of the United Nations human rights mechanisms most relevant to those working to protect or promote women’s rights. These include the: Human Rights Committee, Committee against Torture, Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, UN Human Rights Council, Universal Periodic Review, Special Rapporteur on Violence against Women, and Commission on the Status of Women. Speakers will discuss examples of engaging with UN mechanisms to promote changes in law, policy or practice.

   Speakers:  Connie de la Vega, University of San Francisco School of Law
            Julianne Cartwright Traylor, University of San Francisco School of Law
            Bridget Engle, University of San Francisco School of Law
            Ejim Dike, US Human Rights Network

11:30 - 12:30:  The Inter-American System & Women’s Rights
The Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and Court of Human Rights have addressed women’s rights through their complaints systems, emergency protective measures, monitoring, and reporting. This session will introduce the Commission and Court, their mandates, and the Inter-American standards and decisions relevant to women’s rights. Particular attention will be paid to the role and activities of the Commission’s Rapporteurship on the Rights of Women.

   Speakers:  Rosa Celorio, Inter-American Commission on Human Rights
              Lisa Reinsberg, International Justice Resource Center
12:30 - 1:45:  “Fireside Chat”: Violence against Women as a Human Rights Violation
This conversation will focus on the ways in which international human rights standards can be used to address violence against women, including sexual violence, domestic violence, and gender-related killings. This discussion will focus largely on Caroline Bettinger-López’s experience as lead counsel in the case of Jessica Lenahan (Gonzales) v. United States before the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, with additional examples from the speakers’ work on behalf of aboriginal and refugee women and girls.

Speakers: Caroline Bettinger-López, University of Miami School of Law
Blaine Bookey, Center for Gender & Refugee Studies

2:00 - 2:45:  Gender Discrimination & Other Forms of Discrimination against Women
Discrimination on the basis of gender, race and other grounds negatively impacts women in both the private and public spheres. Drawing on her experience in the United States and abroad, the speaker will discuss the impact of discrimination against women and the ways in which the international human rights framework can be used to combat discriminatory policies and practices; examples will focus on using UN human rights treaties in public policy advocacy, including San Francisco’s adoption of CEDAW at a municipal level.

Speaker: Krishanti Dharmaraj, International Action Network for Gender Equity & Law

2:45 - 3:45:  Sexual and Reproductive Rights
International human rights advocacy can be a powerful tool for protecting or promoting sexual and reproductive health and rights. Drawing on their work in the U.S. and abroad to ensure access to reproductive health care, protect contraceptive coverage, and combat discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity, the speakers will highlight the ways in which they have incorporated human rights strategies into their advocacy.

Speakers: Katrina Anderson, Center for Reproductive Rights
Lisa Davis, CUNY School of Law

4:00 - 4:45:  Group Discussion around Case Studies
During this final session, participants will break into groups with our speakers to brainstorm and discuss human rights protections and advocacy strategies through concrete case hypotheticals involving timely women’s rights issues.

4:45 - 5:00:  Closing Remarks

5:00 - 6:30:  Evening Reception
Please join us in the Dobbs Atrium for an evening reception. Refreshments will be served.
